The Incredible Light of Being

Week of December 22nd

Clarity comes when we shed all the barriers, confusion, distractions, amusements, and excuses that get in the way of what we really want. ~

The Incredible Light of Being

This month, the darkest of the season in the northern hemisphere, has so many celebrations of light. December 8th marks Bodhi Day, celebrating the enlightenment of the Buddha in much of the Buddhist world. The Wiccan tradition of Yule on December 21st honors the passing of the shortest day of the year, remembering the return of light. Christmas celebrates the birth of Jesus, the Light of the World in the Christian tradition. December 26th marks the beginning of both Hanukkah and Kwanzaa, with the symbology of candles. And the season of Advent also uses candles to remind us of the light. "Upon the night view of the world, a day view must follow."
